Building Block Series: Motions Advocacy

Motions are a key tool in an advocate's arsenal. They can streamline proceedings or help settle disputes - but only if you know when and how to deploy them effectively.

In the second installment of our popular Building Block Series, seasoned litigators and judges will take you through an in-depth analysis of best practices, techniques and strategies for each stage of the motion process. Discover when and how to prepare for, draft materials and conduct an effective motion, and receive valuable tips for avoiding common traps.

Developed by leading litigators Sarah Armstrong and Matthew Gottlieb and in consultation with members of our Young Advocates' Standing Committee, this interactive and practical series will help take your motions advocacy to the next level.
